online library service themes for promotion

welcome to your Saskatchewan e-library services and resources

Three online library service themes will be promoted: online full-text articles, ask a librarian, and online library catalogues.

These themes are intentionally broad and intended to promote the type of online services available through most libraries.

online articles

The libraries subscribe to magazines and journals so you don't have to! In Saskatchewan, libraries work together to subscribe to a province-wide selection of more than 28 databases that contain over 7000 full-text magazines and newspapers, available online. Check out your library's web site for access to these and other resources to find out more about health, consumer information, current events information, information on topics for children and more.

ask a librarian

Do you need help finding information, identifying that book or getting a quick fact? Libraries offer an online question and answer service. Each library has its own, but there is also a province-wide network of library professionals that will answer your questions through the Ask Us! Service. You can ask a question, day or night, right here, right now.

online library catalogues

The library catalogue is a search tool for finding books, music cds, videos, dvds, and magazines available at the library. Each library has its own catalogue. In addition, the Gateway provides access to all public library catalogues in Saskatchewan with a single search. Ask at your library about borrowing materials from other libraries.

The web site address used for the campaign – www.mylibrary.sk.ca – is a portal that re-directs people to the individual library web sites in the province where the unique online library services of libraries are displayed.

Province-wide e-library services open to all Saskatchewan citizens will be highlighted in the campaign. These are: Saskatchewan Libraries: Ask Us!, Gateway, and online magazine, newspaper and journal databases available through the Multitype Database Licensing Program. Fact sheets on these specific e-library services will be available for download from www.mylibrary.sk.ca. We encourage you to use the fact sheets to promote awareness of these library services for all Saskatchewan residents.
